Ozell Daniel is the Libertarian Party Candidate for Governor of Hawaii. I am thirty-five years old and grew up in Detroit, Michigan. I served in the United States Army and have a degree from Honolulu Community College in Automotive Mechanics. My life has been start and go, including a tough urban childhood and unfortunately, like many of our citizens, a stint in jail. I turned that around and now joke that at least I have gotten my time in jail out of the way before serving in elective office. Currently, I am active in Hawaii's comedy scene and perform stand up routines as Gary GoldenRod, and I am a principal organizer of the upcoming Comedy-Fest. People know that I am frank and straightforward. Those wishing to learn more can visit my website at www.ozelldaniel.com. When asked why I am running for Governor – I feel it is my obligation. Neither of the two major parties really speaks for me, so I have to speak for myself. There are others who feel frustrated and disenfranchised with our current two-party system. I have to speak up for them as well. The Libertarian Party is the best hope we have to address the real needs of Hawaii; a streamlined government that doesn't waste taxpayer money, government that doesn't impose itself on its citizens, and less red tape and restrictions for businesses so our island economy can thrive. Keep it real.
